ON THE WOOL TARIFF

B. Percy Clark Writes an Interesting Letter to the "Standard."

THE SITUATION DISCUSSED

All Absorbing Topic of Conversation in Public Places of the East-His Remarks Commented Upon by the New York "Herald."

Great Fails, May 16.—Percy Clark, the well known wool grower of Teton county, who is now in the East laboring in the interests of a high tariff on wool, writes to the Great Falls office of the Standard as follows from New York writes to the Great Falls office of the Standard as follows from New York city:

"The tariff question is now the all absorbing topic of conversation in the public resorts of the East. I have just returned from holding a conference with the Merchant Tailors' association, a powerful organization deeply interested in the present tariff bill before congress, and have succeeded in getting the association to combine with the wool growers. They agree to support us in the demands made by me in the coming tariff bill, if we wool growers in return will assist the association in their demands that no one shall be allowed to bring in from Europe more than 100 worth of clothing per capita free of duty. This clause, if introduced, will be very beneficial to the wool growers. I hope through this combination with the Merchant Tailors' association to force the manufacturers into line and the leading members of the association have agreed to do all in their power to accomplish this result.

"President McKinley said to a friend of mine the other day, that he was radically opposed to the lowering of the tariff on the first and second class of wools, as proposed by the finance committee of the senate. It looks now as if the wool growers of the United States would get what they demand."

MR. CLARK ON WOOL. His Remarks the Subject of an Editorial in the New York "Post."

Great Falls, May 16.—A few days ago B. P. Clark of Northern Montana, who is now in Washington, discussed the wool tariff proposition through the columns of the New York Herald, and the Standard of Saturday published the communication in full, because of interest in the subject in this section. Today a marked copy of the New York Post arrived at the Standard office with the following editorial criticism of Mr. Clark's views:

Clark's views:

"The wool growers, as we anticipated, have opened fire on the senate tariff bill in the deadliest manner. A letter from B. Percy Clark, their Montana representative at the recent conference called by Judge Lawrence, says: 'We, the wool growers, démand the schedule as passed by the house on first and second class wool,' etc. They are satisfied, of course, with the marking up of duties on third class, or carpet, wools, but the marking down of the other two classes from 11 and 12 cents to 8 and 9 cents they intend to oppose, and not merely they intend to oppose, and not merely to oppose, but to defeat, at the risk of killing the whole bill and the repub-lican party to boot. This is the way to win a fight, and it is the only way. We cannot withhold our admiration from men who season their discourse in this fashion, but we must call attention to some fallacies in Mr. Clark's communication. He says that President McKin-ley owes his election to the wool grow-ers of the country, and that all the doubtful states were brought into line by them. That is certainly not true of Montana, which he calls 'the largest wool growing state in the United wool growing state in the United States.' This is the state with which Mr. Clark ought to be most familiar. The official returns showed that Mc-Kinley received only 10,494 votes, while Bryan received 42,537. If Montana is the largest wool growing state in the Brysh received 42,537. If Montana is the largest wool growing state in the union, then, on the hypothesis that President McKinley owes his election to the wool growers, Montana ought to have given him the largest proportional vote, whereas it gave him about the

"And what about the other 'doubtful "And what about the other doubtful states' that Mr. Clark says were se-cured to the republican party by the votes of the wool growers? Was Mich-igan one of them? The returns of the igan one of them? The returns of the recent spring election show conclusively that Michigan was saved to McKinley by the votes of the gold democrats. If the wool growers contributed anything to the result, their influence was not noticed at the time. Was Ohio one of these doubtful states? The less said on this subject the better. Still we are or these doubtful states? The less said on this subject the better. Still we are willing to admit that the wool growers of Ohio, or at all events those of them whom Judge Lawrence represents, are capable of going over to the Bryanites at any time if they are not allowed to have their way in tariff making. And here we notice the direful part of Mr. Clark's threat in these words:

Clark's threat in these words:

"The wool growers demand of the republican party to fulfill their pledge, and if it does not, I will prophecy that the party will sound the tocsin of their defeat at the next presidential election, and that a free-silver democratic president will be elected—a thing to be de-

"To be deplored where? Not in Mon-tana, apparently. This threat of what is to take place three or four years hence is hypothetical, and ought not to shake the souls of fearful adversaries, but the demand with which Mr. Clark's letter concludes it so for more practical letter concludes is of a more practical turn. He says that the wool growers will not accept any compromise, and that they demand the restoration of the that they demand the restoration of the duties on first and second class wools to the figures of the house bill, and say that without this they will ask their senators to vote against the whole bill. There is nothing hypothetical or contingent about this. Nor is there any doubt that these Rocky mountain senators can kill the bill. Thus the wool schedule becomes as we have often schedule becomes, as we have often said that it would be, the keystone of the tariff arch. It remains to be seen what New England will say to this least threat of the wood growers. latest threat of the wool growers."

Great Falls, May 16.—T. J. Weir of Lewistown has received an interesting letter from Charles B. Johnson, who left Fergus county in March last for Honduras. He gives a detailed account of his exciting experiences in that country, says the Argus, and his return to New Orleans two weeks ago.

Mr. Johnson left Montana March 8 and three weeks later sailed from New Orleans on the steamship Clearwater, the fastest vessely plying between that port and Puerto Cortez, on the northern coast of Honduras. The passengers sighted Honduras the second day out, but the steamer sailed along the coast for two days and landed her cargo on the fourth day. Mr. Johnson disembarked at Puerto Cortez, a beautiful town, the business district of which is limited to one street, but which is really one of the most important ports of that republic. There he met several Americans, using the term as it applies to citizens of the United States alone, and found the American consul willing and anxious to assist in every way. He learned also that his visit there was inopportune, as an insurrection had been started just previous and the country was in the throes of a civil war. Learning that the rebels were about to make an attack upon the town, he left by train for San Pedro Sula, a town distant inland about 90 miles. His departure was very fortunate for the contemplated attack was made immediately after he left, and the train on which he traveled was the last to go south. At San Pedro he met other Americans, but was left in peace but a short time, the insurrectionists attacking the town and capturing it after a desperate struggle in which 20 per cent. of the garrison was killed. Mr. Johnson was made a prisoner of war and while in custody addressed a letter to Mr. Weir, which was so delayed in transmission that it did not reach its destination until the same day as one written some time later from New Orleans. At the time the teter was written some time letter from New Orleans. which was so delayed in transmission that it did not reach its destination until the same day as one written some time later from New Orleans. At the time the letter was written Mr. Johnson says, "very few people are left in San Pedro, although a few days before the town had a population of about 4,500, nearly everyone not captured having escaped to the mountains or the swamps." The insurgents, so far as he had seen, were gentlemen and not inclined to pillage, preferring to pay for all they got. They are men who were banished from Honduras at the time of the last insurrection, about two and one-half years ago and are led by General Soto, who has made his home in New York and is a great friend of Americans, giving the latter assurances that they will be well treated and given every opportunity for investment if his party succeeds, which seems very probable. The army is advancing toward the capital and contemplates placing Soto in the president's chair and adopting reforms in all government matters. ing reforms in all government matters. The government de facto has been very jealous of Americans.

Finding himself in the midst of war and circumstances altogether unfavor-able for an investigation of the agriculable for an investigation of the agricul-tural interests of the country, Mr. Johnson determined to return to Amer-ica as soon as possible and await a more opportune time, but this deter-mination was not easy to carry out. Securing his release he started for the coast, but was again captured and only after much hardship did he get aboard of a vessel bound for New Orboard of a vessel bound for New Gatling gun."

Mr. Johnson writes that he is very favorably impressed with the country and its climate, notwithstanding his unusual experiences, and contemplates returning to Honduras, in the company of his brother, from Dallas, as soon as conditions are favorable for travel and investigation. Among persons he met were Mr. and Mrs. Van Blarcom from Neihart, Mont.

manic Election—Other Notes.

Great Falls, May 16.—Neihart, which is now a part and parcel of Cascade county, is in the throes of a council contest over the legal or illegal election of one or more aldermen and as a result of the controversy public business is practically at a standstill pending a decision as to who are entitled to scats in the municipal parliament. The Herald takes advantage of the muddle to compliment the street commissioner to compliment the street commissioner as follows:

"The street commissioner is doing well in his effort to clear the thorough-fares about town. The annual deposit of debris, tomato cans and exhausted gum bouts has been shoveled into little beares debris, tomato cans and exhausted gum boots has been shoveled into little heaps and generally hauled away. The main street of Neihart is beautiful when cleared of obstructions, salt barrels, rubbish and dry goods boxes.
